Professor Andy Goodwyn is convenor of the BERA SIG, English in Education. He is Professor and Head of The School of Education and English Language at The University of Bedfordshire, he is Emeritus Professor at The University of Reading where he was Head Education [2007-15]. After 12 years teaching English in schools he moved to work in teacher education and research. He has been a member of NATE for 35 years and is a former Chair. His research focuses on first language education and on the concept of teacher expertise. He has a particular focus on the professional identity of English teachers. He has published extensively including single authored and edited books, contributed to many scholarly journals and given lectures and presentations around the world. He is on the editorial board of numerous journals. He is currently President of The International Federation for the Teaching of English and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts.
